

Jornada: Perspectivas y desafíos de política económica para América Latina

Madrid, 19 de octubre de 2016

CV

ESTEBAN VESPERONI

Esteban Vesperoni is Deputy Division Chief at the Multilateral Surveillance Division of the Research Department at the International Monetary Fund, where he contributes to the Department's research activities and its flagship product, the World Economic Outlook (WEO). He has previously worked in economies in Latin America, Europe and Central Asia, covering a wide range of macroeconomic and financial issues. Previously, he has held positions as economist in the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean, analyst at the Ministry of Finance in Argentina and consultant at the World Bank. He has taught at the University of Buenos Aires and the University Torcuato Di Tella in Argentina. He received a PhD in Economics from the University of Maryland at College Park in 2000. His main research interests are in open economy macroeconomics, with particular focus on exchange rates, capital flows, and credit. His recent topics of research focus on the analysis of global spillovers.