ANDREAS LÖSCHEL: Indicators of energy security in industrialized countries

The German government is about to drastically transform Germany's energy system. The long-term strategy has to be governed by energy security, economic efficiency and environmental compatibility of energy supply. In the presentation, a concept for a regular monitoring of the German energy policy will be presented. For each of the three objectives, indicators will be selected using existing studies and publicly available data, and an appropriate representation or aggregation form will be discussed.
